Hi Dennis-- i just confirmed that the Museum comps VIPs as a standard practice. In case this matters for the ethics review.

Luis,

I'm still the Assistant to OITA's Deputy Ethics Advisor. I'll check with OGC.

Subject: Ethics Question for CEC Council Session

Hi Lenore,

Hope you are doing great. I think you are our ethics official now. I have a question for the CEC Council Session. The CEC is an international organization created through the North American Agreement for Environmental Cooperation between the governments of Canada, Mexico, and the United States. The heads of the EPAs of the three countries serve as the Council of the CEC. Administrator Pruitt, in his role as current CEC Council chair is hosting the 2018 CEC Council Session. As part of the Council, he is taking his Council counterparts

(Ministers of Environment) from Canada and Mexico and their senior representatives to the Oklahoma City National Memorial and Museum as a diplomatic/cultural aspect of the Council meeting. The group total is 12 officials (4 from each country). Normal admission costs $15/person, but the Memorial advised that they will provide complimentary admission to the entire delegation . Can the Administrator (and three other EPA officials) accept the complimentary admission? (I am waiting to learn from the Memorial if they normally comp all VIP delegations in case that plays into your consideration).

Please advise, let me know if you need additional information, or if I need to pose this question to someone else.

Best Regards,
